

Time to Go All Out in Defense, Doolittle Says

War II Flying Hero Testifies At Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle said today the Russians are "certainly ahead" of the United States in missiles and "it is time to go all out" to find a defense against continent-spanning rocket weapons.

Doolittle, a scientist, businessman and World War II flying hero, appeared before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee investigating the U. S. missile and satellite programs.

He threw at the committee a series of recommendations, including a call for improved missile development by this country, and warned:

"All this adds up to an immediate, substantial increase in our military budget."

Doolittle told the senators that the Soviet Union leads the United States in development of both intermediate and intercontinental range ballistic missiles.

"Should start at once," he said the Strategic Air Force needed more planes, missiles as soon as they are available, adequate crews and airfields, more flying time to operate on a "maximum alert."

For air defense, he said, there was a need for improved radar planes and missiles and more rapid development of the SAGE communication system. He said the Army and Navy also should be given the money to do their jobs.

"We should start at once," he said, "on an anti-ICBM intercontinental ballistic missile program... it is time to go all out."

He said this anti-missile defense should include the means both to detect and to destroy enemy missiles.

Doolittle said "the primary reason" for Russia's lead was that the Soviet started working sooner on missiles. He said they started pushing their development 11 years ago, compared with four years ago for the United States.

Better Rate of Progress

He also testified that the Russians have been working harder.

Gifts Overseas Must Go by Air

WASHINGTON (AP)—Christmas packages for servicemen overseas must now be sent airmail in order to insure delivery by Dec. 25, the Defense Department says. The heavy Yuletide mail load requires that air parcels be sent not later than Dec. 10 for Christmas delivery. The deadline for mailing overseas packages expired Nov. 20.

No Definite Plans for Posey Building In Shawneetown, Rep. Kerr Reports

State Rep. Gordon E. Kerr of Brookport, in a letter to The Daily Register dated Nov. 23, said that as of last week there were no definite plans regarding the Posey building in Old Shawneetown.

Rep. Kerr, in replying to a story of Nov. 22 out of Springfield, in which a spokesman whose name was withheld said that plans for an Old Shawneetown Memorial are anything but encouraging, declared "here are the facts in regard to the program."

He said that in the last session of the legislature requests for all state parks were cut by a considerable amount, with $30,000 appropriated to Shawneetown for memorial improvements.

Department Wants Memorial Park
"As of last week there were no definite plans," said Rep. Kerr. "There is a disagreement over the rebuilding of the Posey building. The department wants to build a

Vanguard Project Ready

Navy May Launch First Tiny Earth Satellite Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States drove today toward a zero-hour—possibly next week—for launching its first tiny earth satellite.

Sources close to the Navy Vanguard project reported all in readiness at the Cape Canaveral, Fla. missile range for the space shot with a six-inch test "moon." But they said variable factors, such as weather, made the setting of an exact date impossible. The firing is scheduled for next month.

The disclosure came after a "chill" forced President Eisenhower to cancel tonight's third "chins up" speech on national security. The President also was to have been shown "some very significant" rocket-missile research results after the speech at Cleveland.

The display, prepared by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, included examples of rocket propulsion, new types of engines and high energy fuels to throw new emphasis on America's effort to catch up with the Soviets.

The President, who was scheduled to attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization "summit" meeting in Paris next month, urged a group of NATO scientists Monday in a message to serve as a model for "practical and productive cooperation."

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the same group Russia is "steadily" closing the gap with the military superiority held by the free world.

Must Be Ready
"If war is thrust upon us," he said, "we will have to win it with the weapons in hand. Time will no longer be available to marshal our resources."

In an interview Monday night, Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas declared this country has no evidence Russia could "attack in the near future with intercontinental ballistic missiles."

Navy Vanguard scientists plan to shoot a fully instrumented satellite into orbit in March. But the Army, which was ordered to back up the project, may attempt to launch one in January with a Jupiter-C rocket.

For the baby moon firing which may be made next week, the Vanguard project has already successfully tested all three stages of its rocket. If it goes into orbit, the launching of other test globes will be abandoned and attempt will be made in January to put up the 20-inch instrumented satellite.

Matthews Held After Pistol Seized In Gallatin County

Floyd "Wee Bone" Matthews of Harrisburg is being held in the Gallatin county jail for parole officers after a pistol was taken from him in Old Shawneetown.

Jim Fox, Gallatin county deputy sheriff, took the pistol from Matthews in a tavern in the Old Town. Fox today said Matthews was charged with carrying a concealed weapon following the Gallatin county incident and since he was out on parole from Menard penitentiary where he was sent for the burglary of the Clover Club in Franklin county, Matthews was being turned over to parole officers.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the same group Russia is "steadily" closing the gap with the military superiority held by the free world.

Abandon Oil Test, Await Cable Tools On Another

Walter L. Day's Empson No. 1, NEE NE SE, 29-88-5e (Brushy) was dry and abandoned. It was drilled to 3,093 feet.

Doy Smith's Raley No. 1, SEC NW NW, 29-78-5e (Tate) awaited cable tools to test the Aux vases at 3,115-35.

He said there is a misunderstanding of the bill introduced by Sen. Paul Ziegler of Carmi. This bill, he declared, is Senate Bill 604 and authorized purchase of certain described property in Gallatin county and appropriates $150,000 to the Department of Conservation for this purpose.

To Sell Property

"This bill was introduced for the purpose of buying some valuable church property in Old Shawneetown," he explained. "I attended a conference with the governor in regard to this purchase and at that time no purchase price was set. Later he told me what he thought was a fair price, which was considerably less than the amount in the bill."

Missile Fired At AF Test Center

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A missile believed to be the 3,000-mile range Snark soared off its launching pad at the Air Force test center here today.

The missile climber in a burst of flame at an angle of about 30 degrees, dropped its rocket takeoff engine at a height of about two miles and soared off in a southeasterly direction.

Apparently it was a successful flight. After the missile was launched, the red warning ball which is hung on a pole to warn fishermen to vacate the area, was still hanging on its pole. There were reports here that another missile, perhaps a Vanguard—the Navy's earth satellite launching vehicle—may be fired later.

British, French Premiers Unable To Heal Rift

PARIS (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Premier Felix Gaillard failed to heal the Anglo-French rift in eight hours of talks that ended shortly after midnight. The stalemate threatened Gaillard's political future.

The two premiers met again today with Gaillard battling against time. He hoped to win some promise of British support before the National Assembly tore into his Algerian Home Rule Bill later in the day.

The rift in the grand alliance developed when the United States and Britain flew token arms shipments to Tunisia over French protests. They hoped to head off Russian arms to Tunisia; France feared the allied arms would reach the Algerian rebels.

Youths Rioted
The anti-British feeling exploded into demonstrations against Macmillan on his arrival Monday. Police swinging clubs broke up a demonstration by 2,000 rioting youths near the British and American embassies. Six persons were hurt and 200 arrested.

Tension in connection with the Algerian rebellion flared into violence in Paris again Monday night and four persons were killed and eight wounded in three separate gun battles. The fighting was between rival Algerian nationalists.

The Paris incidents coincided with new precautions in Algeria itself against a threatened flareup of anti-French activities. French authorities said a series of bomb attacks against civilians hinted at a new terrorist campaign to coincide with United Nations debate on Algeria shortly.

In addition to their failure to reach agreement on Tunisia, informed sources said Macmillan and Gaillard could not reach agreement on other problems such as NATO, Algeria and the creation of a European Free Trade Zone which would weld West Europe into a single market.

Boy, 12, Kills Three in Family, Shoots Himself

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A 12-year-old farm boy, angered at an order to "get the cows" before daylight, killed three members of his family today and shot himself.

Gary Earl Bright, 12, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Jewel Bright, his 5-year-old sister, Carol, and his 3-year-old brother, Bobby, as they slept.

The boy was hospitalized in a critical condition with a bullet wound in the chest.

His father, Earl Bright, 35, went to a hospital Monday for treatment of a recent amputation. He had lost his hand in a cornpicker. His last words to the boy were "take care of the farm."

Sheriff Joe Means said the only reason for the shooting he could find was that the boy's mother had told him to get up and go bring in the cows about 5 a. m. today.

"It apparently made him mad, and he shot her first underneath the eye, then several more times in the body," Means said.

The mother, 34, was found sprawled in the living room of the family's four-room farm house at Vaughn about four miles southwest of here.

The boy apparently took a single shot 22 caliber rifle and set a box of shells in a chair in preparation for the massacre.

The boy shot his mother first in the head, then unloaded the gun, put in a fresh cartridge and shot her again and again. Satisfied she was dead, he went to the small bedroom he shared with his brother and sister and shot each of them in the head.

He turned the gun on himself. The bullet entered his chest and lodged near his heart but he was able to crawl several hundred yards to the home of a neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shores. He told them he had shot himself. The neighbors asked about his mother.

"I shot her, and she is dead," the boy answered. A few minutes later he told them he also had shot his brother and sister.

It was explained that the regular finance drive fell far short of the $5,000 goal and unless additional funds were available, it would be necessary to drastically curtail the work of the Salvation Army, especially the emergency relief program.

The evergreen tree on the southwest corner of the square will be used for the "Tree of Lights" program. Two hundred light bulbs will be strung in the tree and for every $5 contribution to the Salvation Army a bulb will be lighted. It is hoped $1,000 will be raised in this manner.

All civic and service organizations are being requested to work a designated period during the "Tree of Lights" fund raising campaign and the Lions voted to cooperate with the Salvation Army in the program.

The campaign will get underway Dec. 7 and continue until Christmas Eve.

Rev. C. G. Friedley, pastor of the Church of God, Land street, was also a guest of the club and spoke briefly of successful plans he had seen used in other communities in obtaining factories.

Charge Soldier With Killing Jap Wife of Navy Man

YOKOHAMA (AP)—The U. S. Army today formally charged a young Michigan soldier with the strangulation murder of the Japanese wife of a U. S. Navy man now serving in California.

Charged with the slaying of 25-year-old Kazuo Eikawa Wescott was S3C Gregory J. Kupski, 23, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Wescott's nearly nude body was found in a Yokohama alley Nov. 17. The Army announced Nov. 22 that Kupski had confessed to the crime.

Her husband, AD1C Robert Leslie Wescott, Vineland, N. J., currently is stationed at the China Lake Air Station in California with the VXI Experimental Squadron. They were married in Japan May 19, 1955, while he was stationed at Atsugi Naval Air Station near here, and their marriage was registered with the U. S. embassy in Tokyo.

White House Physician Says President Has No Cerebral Hemorrhage

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has suffered another form of a heart attack, the White House said this afternoon. Judging from a statement issued by the White House, the President could be described as the victim of a cerebral attack, but the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, relayed word to reporters that the President, in his judgment, had not suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Snyder said, however, that the seriousness of the President's condition must await further examination.

The President's doctors said that during Monday night he suffered "a slight impairment in speech" which had "improved perceptibly" today.

Snyder and Lt. Gen. Leonard Heaton, the commanding officer of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, said in their diagnosis of the President issued soon after 2 p. m. c. s. t.:

"This (referring to his speech impairment of Monday night) confirms our original diagnosis that the President suffered an occlusion of the small branch of the middle cerebral artery on the left side."

"It cannot be determined at this time whether the condition present is one of a small clot or of a vascular spasm. All findings indicate no brain hemorrhage."

The doctors said that the President's current condition was "mild and is expected to be transitory in nature," but that he would require "a period of rest and substantially decreased activity estimated at several weeks."

Snyder and Heaton added, however, that "the outlook for complete recovery within a reasonable period of time is excellent."

The physicians—and a number of them called into consultation during the night and today—agreed that hospitalization of the President would not be necessary.

They were agreed, however, that he must follow a period of "substantially decreased activity."

This meant, in the first place, that the chief executive could not fill his speaking date tonight in Cleveland, Ohio, and the medical report also cast a shadow on the probability of Eisenhower's attendance at the Paris meeting of the NATO council beginning Dec. 16.

Acting White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton was hit by a barrage of questions when she issued the medical bulletin.

At one point during her news conference she said that the President has suffered a "slight stroke."

Under pressing questions, she called Dr. Snyder and later said this was not accurate—that there was no evidence of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack at Denver in September, 1955, went to the Washington airport Monday to meet King Mohammed V of Morocco.

The President and the King motored back through the downtown section of Washington and Eisenhower deposited his guest at Blair House, the presidential guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Shortly after the President returned to his residential quarters in the White House, he went to his second floor bedroom and complained of a "chill."

He returned to his office at 1:40 p. m. c. s. t. but did not feel well. After handling some official papers, he went back to his second floor dressing room of the White House residential quarters.

Dr. Snyder accompanied him this time. The President again asked for an additional blanket and a hot water bottle.

Snyder took a look at his patient, and then called in Col. Walter R. Tkach, the assistant White House physician, and they were shortly joined by Heaton, Col. Francis W. Pruitt, the consultant in internal medicine for the surgeon general of the Army, and Lt. Col. Roy E. Clausen Jr., chief of the neurological service at Walter Reed.

Washington (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles filled in today for President Eisenhower at a conference with visiting King Mohammed V of Morocco.

The President originally was scheduled to meet with the King, but had to cancel the meeting because of a "chill."

The President was unable to attend a state dinner Monday at the White House for the Moroccan ruler. Vice President Richard M. Nixon substituted as host.

Mohammed and the President had been expected to talk over the status of negotiations between the U. S. and Morocco on continued American use of five military bases in the North African country. They also were expected to touch on the Algerian situation.

There was a possibility the President's illness might force the King to revise the schedule for his 19-day stay in the country. He had planned later in the day to sight-see the nation's capital, visiting the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Supreme Court and Mount Vernon.

A big reception was planned at the Washington Hotel for the King. A group of Americans who had simply said they would like to meet the King were among those invited.

THE EQUALITY HIGH SCHOOL is busy correcting a problem common to practically all high schools—parking for basketball games and other school activities. The large area on the west and north of the Equality high school building is being leveled off, trees uprooted and other work necessary to the building of a parking lot accomplished. The plans call for other improvements also, in addition to a lot large enough to accommodate 300 automobiles—a quarter-mile track will be constructed and a softball diamond built on a part of the ground being leveled. And, Principal and Coach Anthony Franc revealed, it is hoped a full sized baseball diamond can be made. The parking lot, the most immediate of the projects, will have two entrances from the west and the roadway will continue around the gym and out south to the roadway in front of the school. Large rock will be put on the lot this fall and smaller gravel next spring.

Drop Listing of Expense Items

WASHINGTON (AP)—Taxpayers can ignore one line in the 1957 federal income tax forms — the one requiring itemization of expense account.

The government dropped the requirement Monday for listing expense receipts, although the query will remain on the tax forms on line 6-A.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Russell C. Harrington said the itemization "would place too great a burden on many taxpayers" because it was announced so late in the year.

Harrington warned, however, that taxpayers should keep accurate records on their expense accounts for the 12 months starting Jan. 1 "so that for 1958 and later years they will be in a position to supply expense account information" to the government.

The tax chief also said taxpayers would be required to follow the customary practice of attaching to their returns a separate listing of deductible expenses for which they received no reimbursement from their employers. This applies principally to self-employed persons.

Harrington's statement ended a month of confusion and consternation among taxpayers whose business expenses are reimbursed by their employers.

Mrs. Musgrave and Mrs. May have been friends for many years and the quiet dignity and sincerity of this talented author made her the best possible choice for this special meeting.

Mrs. May spoke of the beginning of her writing when she was a little girl. She had long wanted to visit the Daniel Boone tree on a mountain near her Kentucky home, about which her father had told her so many charming stories. When she did go one day, she was filled with a child's imaginative delight and sympathetic teacher asked her to write her impressions. The teacher sent the paper to a magazine where it was published and a career was born.

Mrs. May spoke of many happy experiences in terms of an appreciation for her friends who included the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who still keeps a notebook of her daily experiences and from which she writes her many articles and to which is attributed the humanitarian quality.

Mrs. May suggested that all of us have priceless heritages in our daily living. The words of a little child, the beauty of the rose in our garden or the uplifting thought that is shared with a friend. These are the things that are the beauty, security and heritage of the individual person, family or nation and becomes the history, she said.

Mrs. May spoke briefly of an evening spent in the Roosevelt home and the informal charm created by the hospitality of her hosts. She also shared her experience when she was fortunate enough to be on vacation at the Williamsburg, Va., celebration last summer and was given a press card so that she might meet Queen Elizabeth of England. Here again she gave the women a picture of the graciousness and humanity of the young woman of great responsibility, who enjoyed an informal interview.

Mrs. May is primarily a collector and writer of ballads and American folklore. She publishes some of her works, free-lancing to magazines and other publications, but her profession is that of a social worker in the field of psychiatry and mental rehabilitation and she had several years' of service in Louisville, Ky., prior to her husband's work with the Ashland Oil company as a geologist, bringing them to Norris City. In Norris City Mrs. May gardens and is active in writing and producing plays, such as the one now in the making for the Presbyterian church Christmas play.

Mrs. W. W. Dameron, Woman's club president, presided at the meeting and tea and Mrs. J. B. Blackman, first president of the club, presented the meditation on "Gifts," in which her theme was God is the giver of all life and achievement.

Mrs. Charles E. Combe and Mrs. T. R. McCormick were hostesses and poured at the tea table Mrs. G. R. Johnson and Mrs. Ed Gaskins were hostesses at the door.

Mrs. Hudson Mugge played the piano during the tea hour and the committee for the tea was: Mrs.

In Memoriam
In memory of our dear husband and father, John Eston Ledbetter, who passed away one year ago, Nov. 27, 1956:
In memory we see him now,
Yet, know he is away.
'Tis lonely here without him,
But we'll meet again some day.
We listen for his voice, now still;
The steps we hear no more,
His gentle words and loving smiles.
Are memories we keep in store
When we shall lay our burden down.
And toiling here is o'er,
We'll go to meet our loving one
On Heaven's golden shore.
Sadly missed by wife and children, mother, brothers and sisters. 127-1

All that was said and done during our bereavement because of the death of James Brannum, is truly appreciated.

Benson Wins Approval of Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has won Cabinet approval of a plan to expand farm surplus exports by 50 per cent, an authoritative source told the United Press.

The source said the plan won Cabinet endorsement at a meeting Friday. At the same meeting it was reported Benson won renewed backing by President Eisenhower for his bid to reduce farm price support floors.

At Benson's urging the administration will ask Congress to authorize sales of 1.2 billion dollars worth of farm surpluses in return for foreign currencies in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, it was reported. Similar sales in the current fiscal year are limited by law to one billion dollars.

The administration is sure to find many members of Congress sympathetic to such an increase. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) already has said he will propose doubling the sales authorization to two billion dollars.

At the Cabinet meeting last Friday Benson is said to have outlined his entire package of farm proposals for the next session of Congress.

"There was no opposition from the President or any member of the Cabinet," an informed source said. "Benson's program is still the President's program."

In addition to the stepped-up export program, Benson's "package" of farm proposals was believed to include:

—Scrapping the present 75 per cent of parity price support floor for major crops and replacing it with a lower figure, probably 60 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity level.

—Authorizing some increases in planting allotments for controlled crops to compensate farmers for lower prices.

—More research to develop new markets for surplus crops.

Fewer School Dist. in County

SPRINGFIELD — Saline county was one of 47 counties in Illinois whose total number of school districts as of Oct. 1 of this year had dropped from the total of the same time a year ago, reported Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction.

Saline county's total number of school districts as of a year ago was 28. This year's figure stands at 19.

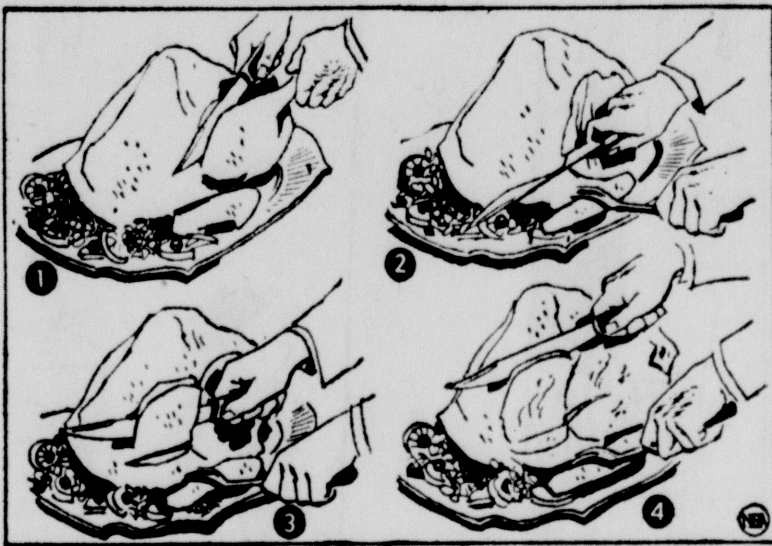

Throughout the state, a sizable drop in the number of school districts was noted, effected principally by the formation of community unit (12-grade) districts in areas formerly operating under the dual district system. Approximately five sixths of the state now operates under various forms of unit districts.

Total districts in the state as of Oct. 1 this year number 1,849, a drop of 169 over last year's total of 2,018. Fifty-four of the state's downstate counties experienced no change in their total numbers of districts. Only outlying Cook county experienced a gain over the past year, with one additional district created there.

The decrease in districts and the preponderance of new community unit districts has come about thru the reorganization program approved in a past Illinois General Assembly. Nickell's office has assisted in the program. Decisions to reorganize are the ultimate right of citizens of the affected area. Majority votes in special elections were the means by which the reorganizations were accomplished.

ATTACKING the Thanksgiving turkey systematically takes the difficulty out of carving. These pictures show procedure.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

The holidays mean lots of turkeys in the house. Therefore, each family should have at least one member who knows how to carve well. These easy-to-follow instructions will make carving the festive turkey easy and pleasant.

Let the turkey "rest" 15 to 20 minutes before carving. Cut the strip of skin holding the legs in place. Avoid overcrowding the platter with garnishes. Place the turkey on large flat platter directly in front of the carver, breast at the carver's left. Have a sharp carving knife, a long-pronged fork, and dinner plates handy.

Place the knife between the thigh and body of the turkey and slash through the skin to the joint. Separate the entire leg from the body by pressing the leg outward with the knife during cutting and by bending the leg back away from the body with the fork or with the left hand holding the leg bone. Cut off slices of dark meat from the leg. The thigh and drumstick may be separated at the joint.

Insert the fork firmly into the upper wing. With the knife, make a long cut above the wing joint, through the body frame. If desired, the wing can be disjointed from the body by cutting through the skin as the fork presses the wing away from the body.

Slice downward with straight, even strokes, beginning halfway up the breast. When the knife reaches the incision above the wing bone, the slice of white meat will fall free.

Continue slicing the breast meat by beginning the cut at a higher point each time, until the crest of the bone is reached. Carve enough white and dark meat for all guests before serving the plates.

Find Body of Missing Man

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP)—The body of Tom Elgin, 64, Murphysboro, who had been missing more than five months was found Sunday by a rabbit hunter near here. Jackson County Deputy Sheriff Ray Dillinger said Elgin was an apparent suicide. He had been missing since June 15.

A piece of clothesline rope was found around his neck. Another piece was attached to a tree on a small bluff about 10 feet above where his body was found.

Orvil Bean, 33, De Soto, and his two sons found the body within 20 feet of where corn had been cultivated all during the summer.

Authorities said Elgin had been despondent because of the death of his mother.

Nevada, with an average annual rainfall of 8.60 inches over the last 64 years, is the driest state in the Union.

Spanish Troops, Moroccans Fight

MADRID (UP)—Spanish troops and Moroccan irregulars battled in the Spanish possession of Sidi Ifni today in the bitterest clashes between the two forces since the Rif wars of the 1920's.

Reports reaching Madrid said Spanish troops with heavy air support from the Canary Island base repulsed an attack by 1,200 Moroccans.

Spanish losses were given as four dead and 19 wounded. The reports said 80 Moroccans were killed or wounded.

The battle was reported to have started last Saturday. Spanish sources here said the irregulars had no backing from the Moroccan government at Rabat.

Sidi Ifni is a barren 1,000 square mile area with a population of 35,000 on the Moroccan Coast. Spain has held it since 1860 but dissident Moroccans have demanded control of it ever since Spain granted independence to Morocco 19 months ago.

Inquest Finds Two Sisters Died Of Asphyxiation

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (UP)—A coroner's inquest ruled Monday night that Deborah Lampa, 6, and her sister, Christine, 8 died of asphyxiation, when flames destroyed their frame home Saturday.

Coroner Barney Browning said the jury determined the sisters suffocated before the flames reached them. Fire Chief Fred Harkins blamed the blaze on an electrical short in a basement water heater.

The girls' mother, Mrs. Edward Lampa, was hospitalized from shock. She and her husband were out. An older sister, Victoria Lampa, 11, fled the flames after unsuccessfully trying to arouse the victims.

Group Gathers At School Where Troops to Leave

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—Eight or 10 men gathered in front of Central High School today, on the eve of the departure of the last 225 paratroopers who made it possible, with bare and ready bayonets, for nine Negroes to integrate the school.

A filling station attendant said the men were there as early as 6:30 a. m. They made no overt moves, but the Army started an investigation to determine what they were up to, if anything.

"I thought we were going to have some excitement for a minute," the filling station attendant said.

The men got into two automobiles and drove away before the Negroes arrived in their parents' automobiles and went to class without incident. Twelve federalized National Guardsmen and two jeeps patrolled the school grounds.

Federalized National Guardsmen said they did not see the men. An Army spokesman said they may have been overlooked during change in guard shifts.

He said persons who live around the school telephoned military headquarters to report the men.

The last 225 men of the 101st Airborne Division in Little Rock will leave Wednesday in giant C-130 troop carriers.

Carbondale Man Honored for Best Apples

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—Ray Grammar, Carbondale, today was honored as the Illinois apple grower with the most perfect apples, with a score of 99.88 out of a possible 100.

Grammar was high scorer among 32 Illinois apple producers who achieved a rating of 95 or better. He was presented a gold plaque in ceremonies Monday night at the joint meeting of the Illinois Fruit Council and the Illinois State Horticultural Society here.

In a joint election of officers today the two groups named Paul Mallison, Geneseo, as president to succeed Frank Chatten, Quincy.

J. Bon Hartline, Anna, was named first vice president; John Surgeon, Grafton, was elected second vice president, and Harold J. Hartley, Carbondale, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Hartline was the retiring second vice president.

Careful Calculations Lead Only to a Fine

DETROIT (UP)—Mrs. Frieda Herrmann, a women's national stock car driving champion, did a lot of calculating to try and prove she wasn't going 60 miles an hour on a residential street.

With the help of her husband, a race track timer, she reached two conclusions which she presented to Traffic Judge John D. Watts. She said the complaint charged she reached top speed in 1.967 feet—"an impossible acceleration."

Mrs. Herrmann also concluded the motorcycle officer who ticketed her would have had to been traveling 120 miles to catch her in six blocks.

Watts listened intently and agreed that she had some good arguments. But he fined her $50 anyway.

Hammaraskjold To Review Mid-East Problems

UNITED NATIONS (UP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammaraskjold will try to find some long range answers to war-causing problems on his trip to the Middle East, informed sources said today.

The sources said he would not limit his talks with Middle East leaders to the immediate fireworks on Israel's borders with Jordan and Syria but would conduct a sweeping review of the whole Middle East situation.

A U. N. spokesman announced Monday Hammaraskjold will leave Friday for Amman, Jordan. He will spend a week in the area and try to get to Israel, Lebanon, Syria and Egypt if he has time.

Situation Tense
In the past few days some of the Israeli-Arab truce agreements have begun to disintegrate again. There were four shooting incidents on the Syrian-Israeli border Sunday and Monday. In the West, Israel accused Jordan of three attempted kidnappings and an illegal blockade of Mount Scopus in the neutral section of Jerusalem.

The truce machinery run by the United Nations has threatened to break down completely. Jordan demanded the removal of U. S. Marine Col. Byron V. Leary as acting chief of staff of the Truce Supervision Organization.

Hammaraskjold expressed his full confidence in Leary and this is one of the things he will talk to the Jordanians about.

The main problem keeping the Middle East unsettled is the question of relocating nearly one million refugee Arabs from Palestine.

Pilot Flies to Record Height

WASHINGTON (UP)—For just 50 seconds an Air Force test pilot flew so high he became gravity-free, weightless.

How did it feel? Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe Jr., 29, said he hardly noticed this strange condition while a record 22 miles above the earth because "I had too much to do."

He said "I could have pulled a pencil out of my pocket and it would have floated."

Kincheloe soared a record 126,000 feet into the California skies on Sept. 7, 1956, in a rocket plane launched from the belly of a B-50 bomber. He traveled 2,000 miles an hour and remained at the record altitude for 50 seconds.

At the height of the plane's climbing arc, its momentum for a time balanced gravity and made the craft and its contents weightless.

The pull of gravity, however, quickly reduced the craft's centrifugal force and destroyed the balance.

He told of becoming the only known person to reach the height in a speech to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's advisory group for research and development.

HAND-PICKED for MURDER

The Harbor House is a small hotel in a resort town called Lakeport, located about midway between Cleveland and Toledo on the south Erie shore. The food there is excellent, especially the fresh caught pickerel and perch, and a bartender named Otto makes the best dry martinis in northern Ohio.

Late on a hot afternoon in August I left Toledo and decided that I could drive to Cleveland before midnight and still have time to stop at the Harbor House for dinner. It was six o'clock when I parked behind the hotel in an area reserved for guests and entered the cool, dusky bar. When Otto saw me, he smiled and began to drop ice into a stirring glass.

"It has been quite a while since we've seen you, Mr. Bennett," he spoke with a faint Teutonic accent. "Last June," I said. He had cool blue eyes, a smooth fair skin and blond hair. His shoulders were lean and wide beneath his white jacket and he moved with a sort of quick military precision. Across his left cheek ran a strip of adhesive surgical tape.

He began to stir gently and looked up at me with a faint smile. "You might be interested to know that I'm attending night school now—learning a profession."

"You've got a profession, Otto," I said, "and you're good at it. What's the new one?"

"Optometry," he said seriously. "I don't want to be a bartender all my life. I've saved enough money to attend school in Cleveland, full time. I only go to one night class a week now."

"I'll miss you when I pass through Lakeport," I said, "but I wish you luck."

I shifted my 190 pounds to a bar stool and sipped at the drink. I said to him, "What happened to your face?"

He looked up from his lemon slicing, touched the tape on his cheek and shrugged faintly. "Just one of the hazards of my present profession."

"Somebody knife you?"

He shook his head. "No. It happened yesterday. A customer asked for a certain brand of Scotch which we do not stock. I told him I was sorry and he ordered rye. Then he accused me of short-changing him. He became quite abusive. He threw a glass at me. I didn't duck quickly enough."

"A charming character," I said. "Then what?"

He shrugged once more. "Nothing. He left." He sighed. "If only people would not drink too much."

"Has he been back?"

Otto's lips tightened for an instant. "He's staying here at the hotel. I can't avoid him. He says he came here to fish, but all he does is drink." He shook his head disapprovingly.

At that moment two men entered the bar from the street door.

Otto's expression grew wary and he shot me a significant glance. The men climbed onto stools beside me. The nearest one was broad and heavy with a fleshy red face, a short blunt nose, a wide, loose mouth. He was wearing a short-sleeved white shirt and white trousers held up by both red-and-white suspenders and a belt tightly buckled around his bulging stomach. He was probably between 50 and 60 years old.

His companion was younger, but almost the same size, with a pudgy white face and black hair showing over his ears beneath a white Panama. He had a long nose, sharp black eyes and an underslung jaw, like a hog's, and he was chewing absently on a toothpick. He wore a gray chalk-striped suit, too tight for his round body, and his small feet were crowded into pointed, black shoes.

The man next to me pounded the bar. "You got any O'Mara's Scotch yet?"

"No, sir," Otto said quietly. "I'm sorry."

"What kind of cheap joint is this?" The fat man's loose lips curled sneeringly as he turned to his companion. "No O'Mara's yet, Ambrose."

Ambrose shrugged and said wearily, "What did you expect?"

THE man beside me said to Otto, "You got rye, huh?"

"Yes, sir," Otto said.

"Well, well," the man said with heavy sarcasm. "So give us a couple of doubles. And snap it up."

"Yes, sir," Otto said in the same quiet controlled voice.

Otto kept his face carefully composed as he poured the drinks and placed them on the bar. I finished my martini and slid the glass over the bar. The fat man watched. Then he nodded at my glass and said to Otto, "What kind of a fancy drink is that?"

"That is a dry martini," Otto said evenly.

"You don't say!" The fat man's voice was high and mincing. "Dear me."

The pudgy, pale man beside him laughed shortly. Both of them lifted their glasses and drank, making an elaborate business of ignoring me.

I didn't say anything.

A youth with a crew cut and wearing a white jacket similar to Otto's appeared in the door leading to the lobby. He gazed around the bar and called loudly, "Mr. Bennett. Paging Mr. Bennett."

I slid off the stool and walked over to him. "My name's Bennett, son."

"Telephone, sir."

I handed him a quarter, went to the phone and said, "Yes?"

A female voice said, "Mr. James Bennett?"

"Here."

"One moment, please. Cleveland is calling."

I waited. Then a soft, familiar

voice said, "Jim?"

"Yes, Sandy."

Sandy Hollis has worked for me since I first took over the Cleveland branch of the agency. She has a nice laugh. Everything about Sandy is nice. "I knew it," she said, laughing.

"Knew what, you dope?"

"That I'd catch you at the Harbor House. You always stop there this time of day, when you're returning from Toledo."

"What's up?"

"You'll love this," she said. "Right after you called and said you were heading home, the big boss phoned from New York."

"Listen, my martini is getting warm."

"In that case, I'll make it quick. The boss wants you to see a man named Hugo Howell. It seems that Hugo wrote directly to the New York office—and enclosed a check. It must have been a lovely-sized check, because the boss wants you to see Hugo right away."

"Okay," I said impatiently. "So

what? I'll see Hugo—"

Sandy laughed again. "I'm saving you a trip by calling you now."

"How's that again?"

"Jim, it seems that Mr. Howell is right there in Lakeport—at the Harbor House. The boss phoned him there today, after he received Mr. Howell's letter and check, and told him that our Cleveland branch manager would contact him personally."

"The way you keep track of me," I said bitterly, "we might as well be married."

"That's an idea," Sandy said, her voice suddenly sober. "The boss didn't go into details with me but I gathered that it had something to do with Hugo's son and a woman."

"Miss Hollis," I said sternly, "you know the rules of the agency. No divorce work, no—"

"You know very well James Bennett. This is not a divorce job, I'm sure."

I returned to the bar. The two men were still sitting there. The fat man beside me gulped his whisky, banged his glass loudly on the bar, slid off the stool clumsily and staggered against me. My glass tilted, spilling martini cocktail over the bar and in my lap. I stood up and began to dab at my light cord suit with a handkerchief. Otto silently mopped the bar.

The other man, the pale, pudgy one, laughed and said to Otto, "Clumsy, isn't he?"

I LOOKED up from my dabbing

and said to him, "Who do you mean—me, or fatso here?" I jerked my head at his companion, who stood by, weaving on his feet. From the corner of one eye I saw that Otto was watching the three of us narrowly.

The fat man turned slowly to face me, his heavy face red and congested-looking. He glared at me with red-lidded eyes. "I don't like that," he said thickly.

"You don't like what?" I asked curiously.

"What you called me. Fatso. I don't like that."

"Sorry," I said, and turned away. There is never any point to a barroom argument. My suit could be cleaned and I could get another drink. Besides, I was tired and I still had to contact my prospective client, Mr. Hugo Howell. I put some money on the bar and headed for the door.

Behind me I heard the pale man laugh sneeringly. "You got him bluffed, Hugo," he said.

I turned around and walked back to the bar.

Time to Go All Out in Defense, Doolittle Says

War II Flying Hero Testifies At Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle said today the Russians are "certainly ahead" of the United States in missiles and "it is time to go all out" to find a defense against continent-spanning rocket weapons.

Doolittle, a scientist, businessman and World War II flying hero, appeared before the Senate Preparedness subcommittee investigating the U. S. missile and satellite programs.

He threw at the committee a series of recommendations, including a call for improved missile development by this country, and warned:

"All this adds up to an immediate, substantial increase in our military budget."

Doolittle told the senators that the Soviet Union leads the United States in development of both intermediate and intercontinental range ballistic missiles.

He said the Strategic Air Force needed more planes, missiles as soon as they are available, adequate crews and airfields, more flying time to operate on a "maximum alert."

For air defense, he said, there was a need for improved radar planes and missiles and more rapid development of the SAGE communication system. He said the Army and Navy also should be given the money to do their jobs.

"We should start at once," he said, "on an anti-ICBM intercontinental ballistic missile program . . . it is time to go all out."

He said this anti-missile defense should include the means both to detect and to destroy enemy missiles.

Doolittle said "the primary reason" for Russia's lead was that the Soviet started working sooner on missiles. He said they started pushing their development 11 years ago, compared with four years ago for the United States.

Better Rate of Progress

He also testified that the Russians have been working harder.

No Definite Plans for Posey Building in Shawneetown, Rep. Kerr Reports

State Rep. Gordon E. Kerr of Brookport, in a letter to The Daily Register dated Nov. 23, said that as of last week there were no definite plans regarding the Posey building in Old Shawneetown.

Rep. Kerr, in replying to a story of Nov. 22 out of Springfield, in which a spokesman whose name was withheld said that plans for an Old Shawneetown Memorial are anything but encouraging, declared "there are the facts in regard to the program."

He said that in the last session of the legislature requests for all state parks were cut by a considerable amount, with $30,000 appropriated to Shawneetown for memorial improvements.

Department Wants Memorial Park

"As of last week there were no definite plans," said Rep. Kerr. "There is a disagreement over the rebuilding of the Posey building. The department wants to build a

Vanguard Project Ready

Navy May Launch First Tiny Earth Satellite Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States drove today toward a zero hour—possibly next week—for launching its first tiny earth satellite.

Sources close to the Navy Vanguard project reported all in readiness at the Cape Canaveral, Fla. missile range for the space shot with a six-inch test "moon." But they said variable factors, such as weather, made the setting of an exact date impossible. The firing is scheduled for next month.

The disclosure came after a "chill" forced President Eisenhower to cancel tonight's third "chins up" speech on national security. The President also was to have been shown "some very significant" rocket-missile research results after the speech at Cleveland.

The display, prepared by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, included examples of rocket propulsion, new types of engines and high energy fuels to throw new emphasis on America's effort to catch up with the Soviets.

The President, who was scheduled to attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization "summit" meeting in Paris next month, urged a group of NATO scientists Monday in a message to serve as a model for "practical and productive cooperation."

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the same group Russia is "steadily" closing the gap with the military superiority held by the free world.

Must Be Ready

"If war is thrust upon us," he said, "we will have to win it with the weapons in hand. Time will no longer be available to marshal our resources."

In an interview Monday night, Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas declared this country has no evidence Russia could "attack in the near future with intercontinental ballistic missiles."

Navy Vanguard scientists plan to shoot a fully instrumented satellite into orbit in March. But the Army, which was ordered to back up the project, may attempt to launch one in January with a Jupiter-C rocket.

For the baby moon firing which may be made next week, the Vanguard project has already successfully tested all three stages of its rocket. If it goes into orbit, the launching of other test globes will be abandoned and attempt will be made in January to put up the 20-inch instrumented satellite.

Matthews Held After Pistol Seized In Gallatin County

Floyd "Wee Bone" Matthews of Harrisburg is being held in the Gallatin county jail for parole officers after a pistol was taken from him in Old Shawneetown.

Jim Fox, Gallatin county deputy sheriff, took the pistol from Matthews in a tavern in the Old Town.

Fox today said Matthews was charged with carrying a concealed weapon following the Gallatin county incident and since he was out on parole from Menard penitentiary where he was sent for burglary of the Clover Club in Franklin county, Matthews was being turned over to parole officers.

Secretary Charles F. Carpenter said the deadline for displaying the plates would be Feb. 15.

Plates ordered by mail will be mailed in numerical order.

The body will be brought to the Martin funeral home in Eldorado to lie in state and funeral plans have not been completed.

Missile Fired At AF Test Center

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A missile believed to be the 3,000-mile range Snark soared off its launching pad at the Air Force test center here today.

The missile climbed in a burst of flame at an angle of about 30 degrees, dropped its rocket takeoff engine at a height of about two miles and soared off in a southeasterly direction.

Apparently it was a successful flight.

After the missile was launched, the red warning ball which is hung on a pole to warn fishermen to vacate the area, was still hanging on its pole. There were reports here that another missile, perhaps a Vanguard—the Navy's earth satellite launching vehicle—may be fired later.

Eisenhower Suffers New Heart Attack

British, French Premiers Unable To Heal Rift

PARIS (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Premier Felix Gaillard failed to heal the Anglo-French rift in eight hours of talks that ended shortly after midnight. The stalemate threatened Gaillard's political future.

The two premiers met again today with Gaillard battling against time. He hoped to win some promise of British support before the National Assembly tore into his Algerian Home Rule Bill later in the day.

The rift in the grand alliance developed when the United States and Britain flew token arms shipments to Tunisia over French protests. They hoped to head off Russian arms to Tunisia; France feared the allied arms would reach the Algerian rebels.

Youths Rioted

The anti-British feeling exploded into demonstrations against Macmillan on his arrival Monday. Police swinging clubs broke up a demonstration by 2,000 rioting youths near the British and American embassies. Six persons were hurt and 200 arrested.

Tension in connection with the Algerian rebellion flared into violence in Paris again Monday night and four persons were killed and eight wounded in three separate gun battles. The fighting was between rival Algerian nationalists.

The Paris incidents coincided with new precautions in Algeria itself against a threatened flareup of anti-French activities. French authorities said a series of bomb attacks against civilians hinted at a new terrorist campaign to coincide with United Nations debate on Algeria shortly.

In addition to their failure to reach agreement on Tunisia, informed sources said Macmillan and Gaillard could not reach agreement on other problems such as NATO, Algeria and the creation of a European Free Trade Zone which would weld West Europe in to a single market.

Salvation Army Officers Explain Drive to Lions

Lt. Marian Haldeman and Lt. Mildred Wallace of the Harrisburg Salvation Army post were guests at the Monday night meeting of the Harrisburg Lions club and explained the fund raising campaign—"Tree of Lights"—to be used during December.

It was explained that the regular finance drive fell far short of the $5,000 goal and unless additional funds were available, it would be necessary to drastically curtail the work of the Salvation Army, especially the emergency relief program.

The evergreen tree on the southwest corner of the square will be used for the "Tree of Lights" program. Two hundred light bulbs will be strung in the tree and for every $5 contribution to the Salvation Army a bulb will be lighted. It is hoped $1,000 will be raised in this manner.

All civic and service organizations are being requested to work a designated period during the "Tree of Lights" fund raising campaign and the Lions voted to cooperate with the Salvation Army in the program.

The campaign will get underway Dec. 7 and continue until Christmas Eve.

Rev. C. G. Friedley, pastor of the Church of God, Land street, was also a guest of the club and spoke briefly of successful plans he had seen used in other communities in obtaining factories.

Charge Soldier With Killing Jap Wife of Navy Man

YOKOHAMA (AP)—The U. S. Army today formally charged a young Michigan soldier with the strangulation murder of the Japanese wife of a U. S. Navy man now serving in California.

Charged with the slaying of 25-year-old Kazuo Elkawa Wescott was S3C Gregory J. Kupski, 23, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Wescott's nearly nude body was found in a Yokohama alley Nov. 17. The Army announced Nov. 22 that Kupski had confessed to the crime.

Her husband, AD1C Robert Leslie Wescott, Vineland, N. J., currently is stationed at the China Lake Air Station in California with the VX-7 Experimental Squadron. They were married in Japan May 19, 1955, while he was stationed at Atsugi Naval Air Station near here, and their marriage was registered with the U. S. embassy in Tokyo.

Boy, 12, Kills Three in Family, Shoots Himself

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A 12-year-old farm boy, angered at an order to "get the cows" before daylight, killed three members of his family today and shot himself.

Gary Earl Bright, 12, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Jewel Bright, his 5-year-old sister, Carol, and his 3-year-old brother, Bobby, as they slept.

The boy was hospitalized in a critical condition with a bullet wound in the chest.

His father, Earl Bright, 35, went to a hospital Monday for treatment of a recent amputation. He had lost his hand in a cornpicker. His last words to the boy were "take care of the farm."

Sheriff Joe Means said the only reason for the shooting he could find was that the boy's mother had told him to get up and go bring in the cows about 5 a. m. today.

"It apparently made him mad, and he shot her first underneath the eye, then several more times in the body," Means said.

The mother, 34, was found sprawled in the living room of the family's four-room farm house at Vaughn about four miles southwest of here.

The boy apparently took a single shot .22 caliber rifle and set a box of shells in a chair in preparation for the massacre.

The boy shot his mother first in the head, then unloaded the gun, put in a fresh cartridge and shot her again and again. Satisfied she was dead, he went to the small bedroom he shared with his brother and sister and shot each of them in the head.

He turned the gun on himself. The bullet entered his chest and lodged near his heart but he was able to crawl several hundred yards to the home of a neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shores. He told them he had shot himself. The neighbors asked about his mother.

"I shot her, and she is dead," the boy answered. A few minutes later he told them he also had shot his brother and sister.

Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack at Denver in September, 1955, went to the Washington airport Monday to meet King Mohammed V of Morocco.

The President and the King motored back through the downtown section of Washington and Eisenhower deposited his guest at Blair House, the presidential guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

White House Physician Says President Has No Cerebral Hemorrhage

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has suffered another form of a heart attack, the White House said this afternoon.

Judging from a statement issued by the White House, the President could be described as the victim of a cerebral attack, but the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, relayed word to reporters that the President, in his judgment, had not suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Snyder said, however, that the seriousness of the President's condition must await further examination.

The President's doctors said that during Monday night he suffered "a slight impairment in speech" which had "improved perceptibly" today.

Snyder and Lt. Gen. Leonard Heaton, the commanding officer of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, said in their diagnosis of the President issued soon after 2 p. m. c. s. t.:

"This (referring to his speech impairment of Monday night) confirms our original diagnosis that the President suffered an occlusion of the small branch of the middle cerebral artery on the left side.

"It cannot be determined at this time whether the condition present is one of a small clot or of a vascular spasm. All findings indicate no brain hemorrhage."

The doctors said that the President's current condition was "mild and is expected to be transitory in nature," but that he would require "a period of rest and substantially decreased activity estimated at several weeks."

Snyder and Heaton added, however, that "the outlook for complete recovery within a reasonable period of time is excellent."

The physicians—and a number of them called into consultation during the night and today—agreed that hospitalization of the President would not be necessary.

They were agreed, however, that he must follow a period of "substantially decreased activity."

This meant, in the first place, that the chief executive could not fill his speaking date tonight in Cleveland, Ohio, and the medical report also cast a shadow on the probability of Eisenhower's attendance at the Paris meeting of the NATO council beginning Dec. 16.

Acting White House Press Secretary Anne Wheaton was hit by a barrage of questions when she issued the medical bulletin.

At one point during her news conference she said that the President has suffered a "slight stroke."

Under pressing questions, she called Dr. Snyder and later said this was not accurate—that there was no evidence of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack at Denver in September, 1955, went to the Washington airport Monday to meet King Mohammed V of Morocco.

The President and the King motored back through the downtown section of Washington and Eisenhower deposited his guest at Blair House, the presidential guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Shortly after the President returned to his residential quarters in the White House, he went to his second floor bedroom and complained of a "chill."

He asked for additional blankets and a hot water bottle and, according to the White House, "lay down to rest."

He returned to his office at 1:40 p. m. c. s. t. but did not feel well. After handling some official papers, he went back to his second floor dressing room of the White House residential quarters.

Dr. Snyder accompanied him this time. The President again asked for an additional blanket and a hot water bottle.

Snyder took a look at his patient, and then called in Col. Walter R. Tkach, the assistant White House physician, and they were shortly joined by Heaton, Col. Francis W. Pruitt, the consultant in internal medicine for the surgeon general of the Army, and Lt. Col. Roy E. Clausen Jr., chief of the neurological service at Walter Reed.

The President originally was scheduled to meet with the King, but had to cancel the meeting because of a "chill."

The President was unable to attend a state dinner Monday at the White House for the Moroccan ruler. Vice President Richard M. Nixon substituted as host.

Mohammed and the President had been expected to talk over the status of negotiations between the U. S. and Morocco on continued American use of five military bases in the North African country. They also were expected to touch on the Algerian situation.

There was a possibility the President's illness might force the King to revise the schedule for his 19-day stay in the country. He had planned later in the day to sight-see the nation's capital, visiting the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Supreme Court and Mount Vernon.

A big reception was planned at the Washington Hotel for the King. A group of Americans who had simply said they would like to meet the King were among those invited.

Tom Neal, 'Heavy' in Brawl with Tone, Now Has Growing Gardening Business

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Remember Tom Neal, the guy who walloped Franchot Tone in a pre-dawn slugfest for the affections of sexy Barbara Payton?

The brawl wrote finis to the muscular actor's career, all but ruined Barbara's future in flickers and injured Tone.

That was more than six years ago.

Neal, tabbed with the "heavy" role in the romantic triangle, won the fight but lost the girl when the blond beauty married Tone. The marriage lasted only a few months.

Barbara has remarried and lives in Mexico. Tone is acting again. But it is Neal who provides the happy ending expected of most movie stories—celluloid or real-life.

Became a Gardener

He paid for his mistakes and rowdy capers when his acting career plummeted like a sack of wet cement. Unable to find work, he pulled up stakes and moved to Chicago where he played in television soap operas.

A couple of years ago he gravitated back to movieland only to find the "go away" sign hanging on producers' doors. He was flat broke.

"Then I moved to Palm Springs and my life began to change," says Neal.

"At first I worked as night manager of a restaurant. That lasted six months. I saved a few bucks, bought some tools and became a gardener.

"It was tough work at first under the broiling desert sun, but it was worth it. I really found myself—for the first time in my life."

Neal began studying Christian Science. Now, two years later he has a burgeoning gardening business and seven employees. He married lovely Pat Fenton, a local girl, and they have a 7-month-old son.

Acting Is Ended

"I take my exams for a landscape architect license shortly," Neal said proudly. "Then I'll really be in business."

The veteran of some 85 movies learned gardening in his salad days by working with a pair of Japanese gardeners who kept his two-acre Bel-Air estate looking like a tropical paradise.

Neal now trims hedges and cares for lawns of movie personalities with whom he used to travel the bistro beat along the Sunset Strip.

"I wouldn't go back to acting for anything," he avows.

"I'm outside all day long. I'm my own boss, and I don't have to and there's no stretching the bank work. No agent shoves me around worry about waiting for a call to account between pictures."

"I'm a very fortunate man," he concludes. "I've found religion, a good wide and work I can be proud of."

Question for the Judge

DETROIT — (UP) — Carl Ver-tegt, 12, one of a group of students visiting Circuit Court for the first time as part of a school field trip, listened intently as lawyers argued a case watched as court aides were introduced and the duties of the court reporter, clerk and deputy sheriff described. He shot his hand into the air when Judge Horace W. Gilmore asked if there were any questions.

"What do you do around here?" the boy demanded of the judge. "I've been watching you for a long time now and you haven't done anything but sit up there."

Soviets Seek to Overthrow Free World: Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon warned Sunday night of a massive economic, psychological and subversive threat by Russia, "aimed at the overthrow of all free governments" which will be beaten back only at the price of sacrifice and patient endurance by Americans.

In his second major address of the day on the same warning, Nixon told the National Council of Catholic Youth here that the Soviet drive was signalled by the recent Moscow manifesto which he described as a "blunt challenge the Free World cannot and will not ignore."

Only a few hours earlier, the vice president told a B'nai B'rith building dedication ceremony in Washington that Russia's economic challenge must not be overlooked in the rush to match Soviet missile progress.

He seemed confident, however, that Russia's scientific lead would be overcome, departing from his text here to say, "I have faith that in the struggle for freedom, the forces of good will prevail."

Nixon said the manifesto issued by the Communist parties of 64 nations was evidence that the Kremlin was launching "a massive non-military offensive aimed at the overthrow of all free nations." He predicted "the dictators of Moscow will sharply step up their economic, psychological and subversive activities . . . they will emphasize again the popular front tactics which fooled so many well-intentioned people in times past."

Nixon warned this country must avoid panic which "can lead to hasty and ill-considered programs" and complacency which "is equally dangerous."

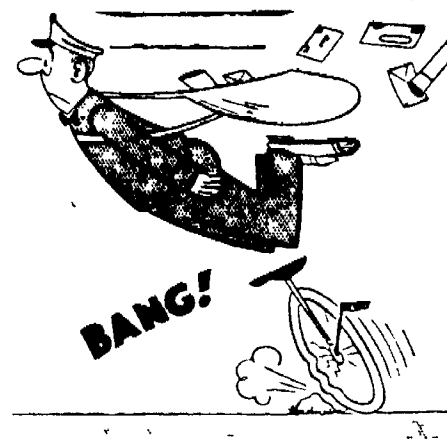

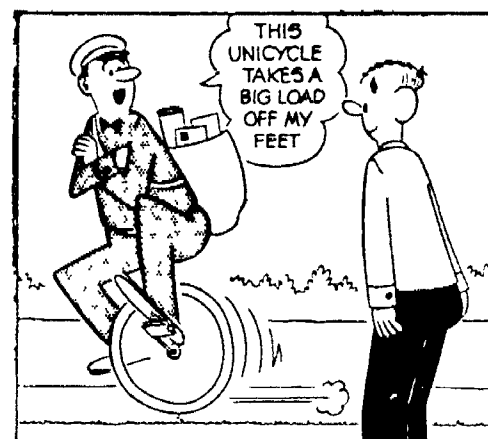

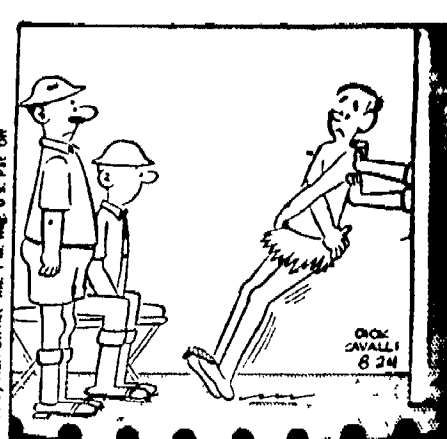

There Is a Presidents' Cemetery In Ohio

LANCASTER, Ohio — (UP) — A cemetery here belongs to the presidents of the United States.

A high stone wall encloses the ground which Nathaniel Wilson in 1817 "bequeathed to James Monroe, president of the United States, and his successors in office for ever."

Wilson hoped that the presidents would be buried beside the grave he was buried in.

A message from Robert Keltner, "Your Pharmacist"

NOVEMBER IS TRADITIONALLY THE MONTH when all of us count our blessings and give thanks for them.

DO YOU REMEMBER how seriously sick patients would be? Day after day, sometimes for months, the doctor would have to call and, finally, the fortunate ones who survived would have to spend much sickness time recuperating. Medical, hospital and drug bills would cost hundreds of dollars.

NOW, MORE LIVES ARE BEING SAVED. A few visits from a physician and, within days instead of months, the patient is usually as good as new again.

REMEMBER THOSE KIDNEY INFECTIONS that used to make permanent invalids out of so many people? Your physician now prescribes one of the new sulpha combinations that cost just a few dollars, and sometime overnight a cure is accomplished.

WE ARE THANKFUL that we now have many important new medicines that can be depended upon to help you more than ever before. We are grateful that our profession of pharmacy permits us to work for your better health.

THE EQUALITY HIGH SCHOOL is busy correcting a problem common to practically all high schools—parking for basketball games and other school activities. The large area on the west and north of the Equality high school building is being leveled off, trees uprooted and other work necessary to the building of a parking lot accomplished. The plans call for other improvements also, in addition to a lot large enough to accommodate 300 automobiles—a quarter-mile track will be constructed and a softball diamond built on a part of the ground being leveled. And, Principal and Coach Anthony Franc revealed it is hoped a full sized baseball diamond can be made. The parking lot, the most immediate of the projects will have two entrances from the west and the roadway will continue around the gym and out south to the roadway in front of the school. Large rock will be put on the lot this fall and smaller gravel next spring. (Daily Register Staff Photo)

MRS. TINSLEY MAY, Norris City, speaking before the Harrisburg Woman's club at the annual Library Tea Monday. Mrs. W. W. Damron, president of the club is seated at the table. (Register Staff Photo)

Mrs. Tinsley May, Author, Addresses Woman's Club At Annual Library Tea

Mrs. Tinsley May of Norris City was the guest speaker at the Harrisburg Woman's club Monday at the meeting which was also the annual Library Tea. Mrs. J. A. Musgrave, chairman, was congratulated on her choice of this speaker. Mrs. Musgrave and Mrs. May have been friends for many years and the quiet dignity and sincerity of this talented author made her the best possible choice for this special meeting.

Mrs. May spoke of the beginning of her writing when she was a little girl. She had long wanted to visit the Daniel Boone tree on a mountain near her Kentucky home, about which her father had told her so many charming stories. When she did go one day, she was filled with a child's imaginative delight and sympathetic teacher asked her to write her impressions. The teacher sent the paper to a magazine where it was published and a career was born.

Mrs. May spoke of many happy experiences in terms of an appreciation for her friends who included the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who still keeps a notebook of her daily experiences and from which she writes her many articles and to which is attributed the humanitarian quality.

Mrs. May suggested that all of us have priceless heritages in our daily living. The words of a little child, the beauty of the rose in our garden or the uplifting thought that is shared with a friend. These are the things that are the beauty, security and heritage of the individual person, family or nation and becomes the history, she said.

Mrs. May spoke briefly of an evening spent in the Roosevelt home and the informal charm created by the hospitality of her hosts. She also shared her experience when she was fortunate enough to be on vacation at the Williamsburg, Va., celebration last summer and was given a press card so that she might meet Queen Elizabeth of England. Here again she gave the women a picture of the graciousness and humanity of the young woman of great responsibility, who enjoyed an informal interview.

Mrs. May is primarily a collector and writer of ballads and American folklore. She publishes some of her works, free-lancing to magazines and other publications, but her profession is that of a social worker in the field of psychiatry and mental rehabilitation and she had several years' of service in Louisville, Ky., prior to her husband's work with the Ashland Oil company as a geologist, bringing them to Norris City. In Norris City Mrs. May gardens and is active in writing and producing plays such as the one now in the making for the Presbyterian church Christmas play.

Mrs. W. W. Damron, Woman's club president, presided at the meeting and tea and Mrs. J. B. Blackman, first president of the club, presented the meditation on "Gifts," in which her theme was God is the giver of all life and achievement.

Mrs. Charles E. Combe and Mrs. T. R. McCormick were hostesses and poured at the tea table. Mrs. G. R. Johnson and Mrs. Ed Gaskins were hostesses at the door.

Mrs. Hudson Mugge played the piano during the tea hour and the committee for the tea was: Mrs.

Drop Listing of Expense Items

WASHINGTON (UP)—Taxpayers can ignore one line in the 1957 federal income tax forms—the one requiring itemization of expense account.

The government dropped the requirement Monday for listing expense receipts, although the query will remain on the tax forms on line 6-A.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Russell C. Harrington said the itemization "would place too great a burden on many taxpayers" because it was announced so late in the year.

Harrington warned, however, that taxpayers should keep accurate records on their expense accounts for the 12 months starting Jan. 1 "so that for 1958 and later years they will be in a position to supply expense account information" to the government.

The tax chief also said taxpayers would be required to follow the customary practice of attaching to their returns a separate listing of deductible expenses for which they received no reimbursement from their employers. This applies principally to self-employed persons.

Harrington's statement ended a month of confusion and consternation among taxpayers whose business expenses are reimbursed by their employers.

"To Insure Promptness"
The custom of tipping began in 16th and 17th century coffee houses of England. Customers were expected to drop coins into a brass-bound box inscribed "To Insure Promptness," from which phrase the word "tip" evolved.

Step-By-Step Procedure To Carving Turkey

ATTACKING the Thanksgiving turkey systematically takes the difficulty out of carving. These pictures show procedure.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

The holidays mean lots of turkeys in the house. Therefore, each family should have at least one member who knows how to carve well. These easy-to-follow instructions will make carving the festive turkey easy and pleasant.

Let the turkey "rest" 15 to 20 minutes before carving. Cut the strip of skin holding the legs in place. Avoid overcrowding the platter with garnishes. Place the turkey on large flat platter directly in front of the carver, breast at the carver's left. Have a sharp carving knife, a long-pronged fork, and dinner plates handy.

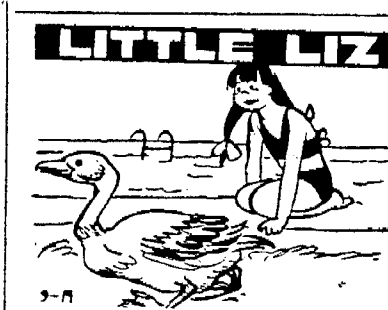

Place the knife between the thigh and body of the turkey and slash through the skin to the joint. Separate the entire leg from the body by pressing the leg outward with the knife during cutting and by bending the leg back away from the body with the fork or with the left hand holding the leg bone. Cut off slices of dark meat from the leg. The thigh and drumstick may be separated at the joint.

Insert the fork firmly into the upper wing. With the knife, make a long cut above the wing joint, through the body frame. If desired, the wing can be disjointed from the body by cutting through the skin as the fork presses the wing away from the body.

Slice downward with straight, even strokes, beginning halfway up the breast. When the knife reaches the incision above the wing bone, the slice of white meat will fall free.

Continue slicing the breast meat by beginning the cut at a higher point each time, until the crest of the bone is reached. Carve enough white and dark meat for all guests before serving the plates.

Swimming may improve a person's figure, but it hasn't done much for the duck.

Benson Wins Approval of Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has won Cabinet approval of a plan to expand farm surplus exports by 50 per cent, an authoritative source told the United Press.

The source said the plan won Cabinet endorsement at a meeting Friday. At the same meeting it was reported Benson won renewed backing by President Eisenhower for his bid to reduce farm price support floors.

At Benson's urging the administration will ask Congress to authorize sales of 1.2 billion dollars worth of farm surpluses in return for foreign currencies in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, it was reported. Similar sales in the current fiscal year are limited by law to one billion dollars.

The administration is sure to find many members of Congress sympathetic to such an increase. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D. Minn.) already has said he will propose doubling the sales authorization to two billion dollars.

At the Cabinet meeting last Friday Benson is said to have outlined his entire package of farm proposals for the next session of Congress.

"There was no opposition from the President or any member of the Cabinet," an informed source said. "Benson's program is still the President's program."

In addition to the stepped-up export program, Benson's "package" of farm proposals was believed to include:

—Scrapping the present 75 per cent of parity price support floor for major crops and replacing it with a lower figure, probably 60 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity level.

—Authorizing some increases in planting allotments for controlled crops to compensate farmers for lower prices.

—More research to develop new markets for surplus crops.

Benson's recent 24-day round-the-world trip to study surplus export

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D. (Written for NEA Service)

Attractive people may have only surface beauty. Although the old cliché that "Beauty is only skin deep" is not always true, it certainly applies to some people. The handsome man may have a twisted mind. His soul may be warped. His morals may be questionable or even degenerate. His eye may be clouded.

There is a sparkle in the eye which comes from the cloudiness of mind and from the purity of the soul. Many a beautiful life has been housed in a crippled body or has radiated from a "homely" face.

Sometimes physical suffering can beautify the life of one who has made the most of his condition. Even the spiritual turmoil which results with repentance for convicted sin refines the whole being and makes folk attractive. Let us all so live that the inner beauty of our character may outshine the beauty of our faces.

Fewer School Dists. in County

SPRINGFIELD — Saline county was one of 47 counties in Illinois whose total number of school districts as of Oct. 1 of this year had dropped from the total of the same time a year ago, reported Vernon L. Nickell, state superintendent of public instruction.

Saline county's total number of school districts as of a year ago was 28. This year's figure stands at 19.

Throughout the state, a sizable drop in the number of school districts was noted, effected principally by the formation of community unit (12-grade) districts in areas formerly operating under the dual district system. Approximately five sixths of the state now operates under various forms of unit districts.

Total districts in the state as of Oct. 1 this year number 1,849, a drop of 169 over last year's total of 2,018. Fifty-four of the state's downstate counties experienced no change in their total numbers of districts. Only outlying Cook county experienced a gain over the past year, with one additional district created there.

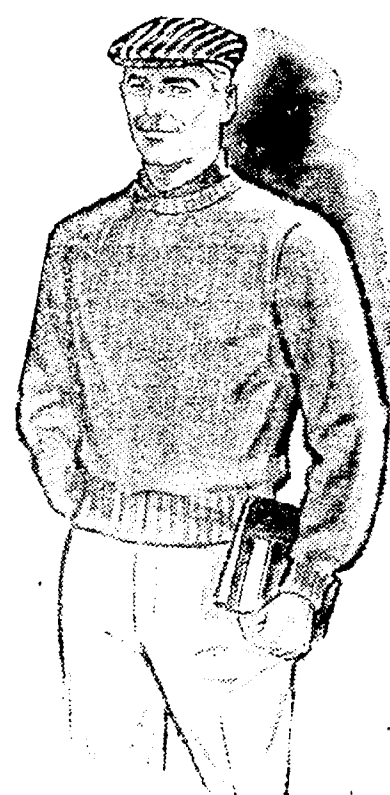

The decrease in districts and the preponderance of new community unit districts has come about thru the reorganization program approved in a past Illinois General Assembly. Nickell's office has assisted in the program. Decisions to reorganize are the ultimate right of citizens of the affected area. Majority votes in special elections were the means by which the reorganizations were accomplished.

The Statue of Liberty is placed with her back toward the United States because she stands as a symbol of liberty shedding light on the world and therefore was made to face the world.

"A LUCKY PENNY," a 3-act play, will be presented this evening by the Junior class of the Equality high school, with curtain time 7:30. Members of the cast are Phyllis Paniter, Louis Garrett, Don Thompson, Freda Sisk, Jerry Williams, Jackie Mann, Elizabeth Gott, Sue Wenzel, Bobby Dale, Gary Tite, Ronald Thompson, Louise Walters, Carolyn Barnett, Audriana McMurtry and Ginny Freeman, who was not present when photo was made. Delmar Feazel, standing at left, is the faculty director. (Daily Register Staff Photo)

We listen for his voice, now still; The steps we hear no more, His gentle words and loving smiles.
Are memories we keep in store When we shall lay our burden down.
And toiling here is o'er, We'll go to meet our loving one On Heaven's golden shore.

American Educators Begin To Take Seriously Soviet Progress in Classrooms

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Two years ago, a high Soviet official told an American educator who was visiting Russia:
"We're not going to fight a hot war with you. We're going to lick you in the classroom."

Few Americans were prepared in 1955 to take this Soviet boast seriously. The U. S. school system, despite its "temporary" shortages of space and faculty, was widely regarded then as the best in the world. Russia was credited with a few good technical schools but its overall educational system was considered rather primitive.

Three recent developments have shaken rudely such American complacency:

1. Disclosure that Russia is training far more scientists and engineers than the United States. Russian schools graduate 60,000 engineers a year to our 34,000; 8,000 Ph.D.'s in science to our 6,000.

2. Sputniks I and II blasted any notion that Russia is sacrificing quality for quantity in technical education.

3. A U. S. Office of Education report showed that Russian students work much longer and harder, and receive far more intensive training in science, mathematics and languages than American students.

President Eisenhower had all of these facts in mind when he said in his Nov. 14 broadcast that strengthening U. S. schools is "the most critical problem" confronting the nation in its race with Russia for scientific and military supremacy.

The President's warning since has been echoed by leading scientists and educators and by millions of parents who were concerned about the state of our schools long before Sputnik I and II.

Spanish Troops, Moroccans Fight

MADRID (AP)—Spanish troops and Moroccan irregulars battled in the Spanish possession of Sidi Ifni today in the bitterest clashes between the two forces since the Rif wars of the 1920's.

Reports reaching Madrid said Spanish troops with heavy air support from the Canary Island base repulsed an attack by 1,200 Moroccans.

Spanish losses were given as four dead and 19 wounded. The reports said 80 Moroccans were killed or wounded.

The battle was reported to have started last Saturday. Spanish sources here said the irregulars had no backing from the Moroccan government at Rabat.

Sidi Ifni is a barren 1,000 square mile area with a population of 35,000 on the Moroccan Coast. Spain has held it since 1860 but dissident Moroccans have demanded control of it ever since Spain granted independence to Morocco 19 months ago.

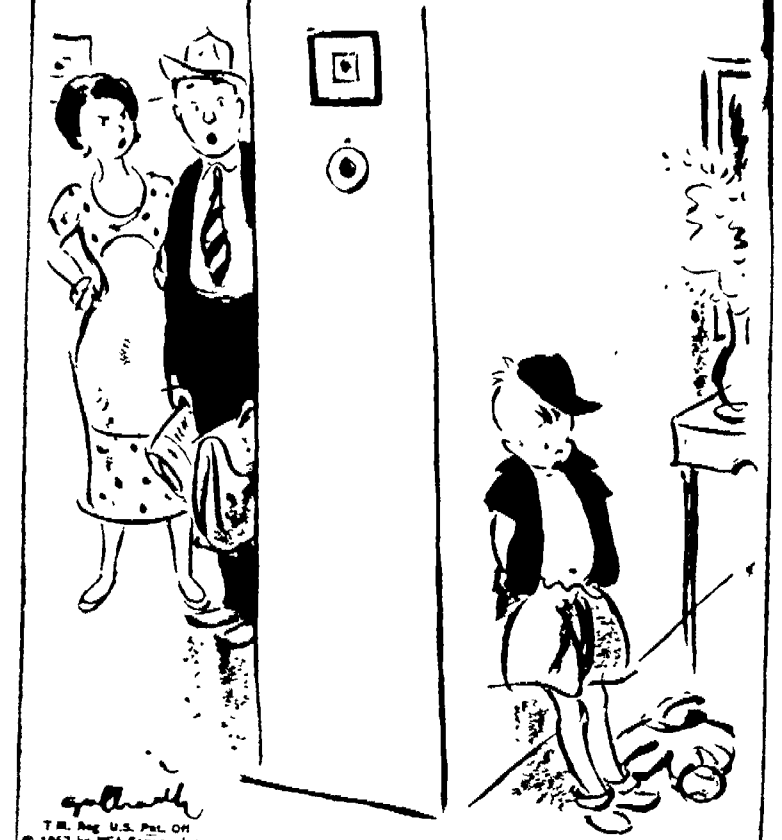

Inquest Finds Two Sisters Died Of Asphyxiation

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (AP)—A coroner's inquest ruled Monday night that Deborah Lampa, 6, and her sister, Christine, 8 died of asphyxiation, when flames destroyed their frame home Saturday.

Coroner Barney Browning said the jury determined the sisters suffocated before the flames reached them. Fire Chief Fred Harkins blamed the blaze on an electrical short in a basement water heater.

The girls' mother, Mrs. Edward Lampa, was hospitalized from shock. She and her husband were out. An older sister, Victoria Lampa, 11, fled the flames after unsuccessfully trying to arouse the victims.

Group Gathers At School Where Troops To Leave

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Eight or 10 men gathered in front of Central High School today, on the eve of the departure of the last 225 paratroopers who made it possible, with bare and ready bayonets, for nine Negroes to integrate the school.

A filling station attendant said the men were there as early as 6:30 a. m. They made no overt moves, but the Army started an investigation to determine what they were up to, if anything.

"I thought we were going to have some excitement for a minute," the filling station attendant said.

The men got into two automobiles and drove away before the Negroes arrived in their parents' automobiles and went to class without incident. Twelve federalized National Guardsmen and two jeeps patrolled the school grounds.

Federalized National Guardsmen said they did not see the men. An Army spokesman said they may have been overlooked during a change in guard shifts.

He said persons who live around the school telephoned military headquarters to report the men.

The last 225 men of the 101st Airborne Division in Little Rock will leave Wednesday in giant C-130 troop carriers.

Shapely Dancer Proves Gentlemen Prefer Blondes

BERLIN (AP)—A shapely brunette dancer put on a wig and proved gentlemen prefer blondes.

Marion Peterhansel, a 19-year-old runner-up in this year's Miss Berlin beauty contest, tested the old saying by appealing to men for aid first as a brunette and then as a blonde.

In her natural hair she dropped a valise on the street, scattering its contents. She had to pick up her belongings herself.

She pretended her automobile broke down. No one offered to push it.

Then she tried the same test with a blond wig. Men jumped to pick up her scattered clothing. They pushed her automobile. And she got in the phone booth immediately.

Carbondale Man Honored for Best Apples

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Ray Grammar, Carbondale, today was honored as the Illinois apple grower with the most perfect apples, with a score of 99.88 out of a possible 100.

Grammar was high scorer among 32 Illinois apple producers who achieved a rating of 95 or better. He was presented a gold plaque in ceremonies Monday night at the joint meeting of the Illinois Fruit Council and the Illinois State Horticultural Society here.

In a joint election of officers to day the two groups named Paul Mallison, Geneseo, as president to succeed Frank Chatten, Quincy.

J. Bon Hartline, Anna, was named first vice president; John Surgeon, Grafton, was elected second vice president, and Harold J. Hartley, Carbondale, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Hartline was the retiring second vice president.

Careful Calculations Lead Only to a Fine

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Frieda Herrmann, a women's national stock car driving champion, did a lot of calculating to try and prove she wasn't going 60 miles an hour on a residential street.

With the help of her husband, a race track tuner, she reached two conclusions which she presented to Traffic Judge John D. Watts.

She said the complaint charged she reached top speed in 1.967 feet—"an impossible acceleration."

Mrs. Herrmann also concluded the motorcycle officer who ticketed her would have had to been traveling 120 miles to catch her in six blocks.

Watts listened intently and agreed that she had some good arguments.

But he fined her $50 anyway.

Hammaraskjold To Review Mid-East Problems

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammaraskjold will try to find some long range answers to war-causing problems on his trip to the Middle East, informed sources said today.

The sources said he would not limit his talks with Middle East leaders to the immediate fireworks on Israel's borders with Jordan and Syria but would conduct a sweeping review of the whole Middle East situation.

A U. N. spokesman announced Monday Hammaraskjold will leave Friday for Amman, Jordan. He will spend a week in the area and try to get to Israel, Lebanon, Syria and Egypt if he has time.

Situation Tense

In the past few days some of the Israeli-Arab truce agreements have begun to disintegrate again. There were four shooting incidents on the Syrian-Israeli border Sunday and Monday. In the West, Israel accused Jordan of three attempted kidnappings and an illegal blockade of Mount Scopus in the neutral section of Jerusalem.

The truce machinery run by the United Nations has threatened to break down completely. Jordan demanded the removal of U. S. Marine Col. Byron V. Leary as acting chief of staff of the Truce Supervision Organization.

Hammaraskjold expressed his full confidence in Leary and this is one of the things he will talk to the Jordanians about.

The main problem keeping the Middle East unsettled is the question of relocating nearly one million refugee Arabs from Palestine.

Time to Go All Out In Defense: Doolittle

"even in the schools," "sacrificing more," and have a long-range, consistent plan" aimed at achieving world domination.

The general said he believes "the rate of Russian progress" in science and technology betters this country's. He testified that Russia already has surged past the United States in some of these fields.

And, he predicted, Russia will pass us in all of them if it continues its present rate of progress.

However, Doolittle said there is "considerable question" whether Russia has caught up with this country in air-to-air missiles. They are replacing machine guns and small cannons as the main armament of fighter and interceptor planes.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson told newsmen earlier today that the nation's only real security lies in building up "a highly trained corps of engineers and scientists capable of meeting any threat." The Texas Democrat is chairman of the subcommittee.

The senators are expected to go into secret session after the public hearings are completed.

Johnson told newsmen that Monday's testimony by Dr. Edward Teller, "father" of the hydrogen bomb, and Dr. Vannevar Bush, long-time scientific consultant to the government, indicated "the ballistic missile, important though it may be, is only a symbol of an even graver situation."

Bush, Teller and Dr. John Chipman, another scientist witness, all urged greater efforts in basic research and science education as urgently needed to put the United States ahead of Russia in the race or development of missiles and other space weapons.

A statement by Teller that Russia had dealt this country a scientific Pearl Harbor was challenged later by President Eisenhower's scientific manpower adviser, Dr. Howard L. Bevis.

Propaganda Defeat Only

He said "I don't think it is as bad as that. I think we suffered a propaganda defeat and... a serious one."

Bush said the Unification Act of 1947 should be overhauled to establish a central military war planning board apart from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Johnson said "considerable thought" would be given to this proposal.

Bush, board chairman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology said the nation is "in a tangle" in its missile program because of "an absence of overall planning."

The veteran engineer - scientist blasted American "smugness... complacency" and "egotism" and said the government must put its "house in order as for the missile program."

Bush said the chief reason for interservice rivalries was lack of an umpire and that the result is three war plans from three services.

Pilot Flies to Record Height

WASHINGTON (AP)—For just 50 seconds an Air Force test pilot flew so high he became gravity free, weightless.

How did it feel? Capt. Iven C. Kincheloe Jr., 29, said he hardly noticed this strange condition while a record 22 miles above the earth because "I had too much to do."

He said "I could have pulled a pencil out of my pocket and it would have floated."

Kincheloe soared a record 126,000 feet into the California skies on Sept. 7, 1956, in a rocket plane launched from the belly of a B-50 bomber. He traveled 2,000 miles an hour and remained at the record altitude for 50 seconds.

At the height of the plane's climbing arc, its momentum for a time balanced gravity and made the craft and its contents weightless.

The pull of gravity, however, quickly reduced the craft's centrifugal force and destroyed the balance.

He told of becoming the only known person to reach the height in a speech to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's advisory group for research and development.

The Harbor House is a small hotel in a resort town called Lakeport, located about midway between Cleveland and Toledo on the south Erie shore. The food there is excellent, especially the fresh caught pickerel and perch, and a bartender named Otto makes the best dry martinis in northern Ohio.

Late on a hot afternoon in August I left Toledo and decided that I could drive to Cleveland before midnight and still have time to stop at the Harbor House for dinner. It was six o'clock when I parked behind the hotel in an area reserved for guests and entered the cool, dusky bar. When Otto saw me, he smiled and began to drop ice into a stirring glass.

"It has been quite a while since we've seen you, Mr. Bennett." He spoke with a faint Teutonic accent. "Last June," I said. He had cool blue eyes, a smooth fair skin and blond hair. His shoulders were lean and wide beneath his white jacket and he moved with a sort of quick military precision. Across his left cheek ran a strip of adhesive surgical tape.

He began to stir gently and looked up at me with a faint smile. "You might be interested to know that I'm attending night school now—learning a profession."

"You've got a profession, Otto," I said, "and you're good at it. What's the new one?"

"Optometry," he said seriously. "I don't want to be a bartender all my life. I've saved enough money to attend school in Cleveland, full time. I only go to one night class a week now."

"I'll miss you when I pass through Lakeport," I said, "but I wish you luck."

I shifted my 190 pounds to a bar stool and sipped at the drink I said to him, "What happened to your face?"

He looked up from his lemon slicing, touched the tape on his cheek and shrugged faintly. "Just one of the hazards of my present profession."

"Somebody knife you?"

He shook his head. "No. It happened yesterday. A customer asked for a certain brand of Scotch which we do not stock. I told him I was sorry and he ordered rye. Then he accused me of short-changing him. He became quite abusive. He threw a glass at me I didn't duck quickly enough."

"A charming character," I said. "Then what?"

He shrugged once more. "Nothing. He left." He sighed. "If only people would not drink too much."

"Has he been back?"

Otto's lips tightened for an instant. "He's staying here at the hotel. I can't avoid him. He says he came here to fish, but all he does is drink." He shook his head disapprovingly.

At that moment two men entered the bar from the street door

Otto's expression grew wary and he shot me a significant glance. The men climbed onto stools beside me. The nearest one was broad and heavy with a fleshy red face, a short blunt nose, a wide, loose mouth. He was wearing a short-sleeved white shirt and white trousers held up by red-and-white suspenders and a belt tightly buckled around his bulging stomach. He was probably between 50 and 60 years old.

His companion was younger, but almost the same size, with a pudgy white face and black hair showing over his ears beneath a white Panama. He had a long nose, sharp black eyes and an underslung jaw, like a hog's, and he was chewing absently on a toothpick. He wore a gray chalk-striped suit, too tight for his round body, and his small feet were crowded into pointed, black shoes.

The man next to me pounded the bar. "You got any O'Mara's Scotch yet?"

"No, sir," Otto said quietly. "I'm sorry."

"What kind of cheap joint is this?" The fat man's loose lips curled sneeringly as he turned to his companion. "No O'Mara's yet, Ambrose."

Ambrose shrugged and said wearily, "What did you expect?"

THE man beside me said to Otto, "You got rye, huh?"

"Yes, sir," Otto said. "Well, well," the man said with heavy sarcasm. "So give us a couple of doubles. And snap it up."

"Yes, sir," Otto said in the same quiet controlled voice.

Otto kept his face carefully composed as he poured the drinks and placed them on the bar. I finished my martini and slid the glass over the bar. The fat man watched. Then he nodded at my glass and said to Otto, "What kind of a fancy drink is that?"

"That is a dry martini," Otto said evenly.

"You don't say!" The fat man's voice was high and mincing. "Dear me."

The pudgy, pale man beside him laughed shortly. Both of them lifted their glasses and drank, making an elaborate business of ignoring me.

I didn't say anything.

A youth with a crew cut and wearing a white jacket similar to Otto's appeared in the door leading to the lobby. He gazed around the bar and called loudly, "Mr. Bennett. Paging Mr. Bennett."

I slid off the stool and walked over to him. "My name's Bennett, son."

"Telephone, sir."

I handed him a quarter, went to the phone and said, "Yes?"

A female voice said, "Mr. James Bennett?"

"Here."

"One moment, please. Cleveland is calling."

I waited. Then a soft, familiar

voice said, "Jim?"

"Yes, Sandy."

Sandy Hollis has worked for me since I first took over the Cleveland branch of the agency. She has a nice laugh. Everything about Sandy is nice. "I knew it," she said, laughing.

"Knew what, you dope?"

"That I'd catch you at the Harbor House. You always stop there this time of day, when you're returning from Toledo."

"What's up?"

"You'll love this," she said. "Right after you called and said you were heading home, the big boss phoned from New York."

"Listen, my martini is getting warm."

"In that case, I'll make it quick. The boss wants you to see a man named Hugo Howell. It seems that Hugo wrote directly to the New York office—and enclosed a check. It must have been a lovely-sized check, because the boss wants you to see Hugo right away."

"Okay," I said impatiently. "So

what? I'll see Hugo—"

Sandy laughed again. "I'm saving you a trip by calling you now."

"How's that again?"

"Jim, it seems that Mr. Howell is right there in Lakeport—at the Harbor House. The boss phoned him there today, after he received Mr. Howell's letter and check, and told him that our Cleveland branch manager would contact him personally."

"The way you keep track of me," I said bitterly, "we might as well be married."

"That's an idea," Sandy said. Her voice suddenly sober. "The boss didn't go into details with me but I gathered that it had something to do with Hugo's son and a woman."

"Miss Hollis," I said sternly, "you know the rules of the agency. No divorce work, no—"

"You know very well James Bennett. This is not a divorce job, I'm sure."

I returned to the bar. The two men were still sitting there. The fat man beside me gulped his whisky, banged his glass loudly on the bar, slid off the stool clumsily and staggered against me. My glass tilted, spilling martini cocktail over the bar and in my lap. I stood up and began to dab at my light cord suit with a handkerchief. Otto silently mopped the bar.

The other man, the pale, pudgy one, laughed and said to Otto, "Clumsy, isn't he?"

I LOOKED up from my dabbing

and said to him, "Who do you mean—me, or fatso here?" I jerked my head at his companion, who stood by, weaving on his feet. From the corner of one eye I saw that Otto was watching the three of us narrowly.

The fat man turned slowly to face me, his heavy face red and congested-looking. He glared at me with red-lidded eyes. "I don't like that," he said thickly.

"You don't like what?" I asked curiously.

"What you called me. Fatso. I don't like that."

"Sorry," I said, and turned away. There is never any point to a barroom argument. My suit could be cleaned and I could get another drink. Besides, I was tired and I still had to contact my prospective client, Mr. Hugo Howell. I put some money on the bar and headed for the door.

Behind me I heard the pale man laugh sneeringly. "You got him bluffed, Hugo," he said.

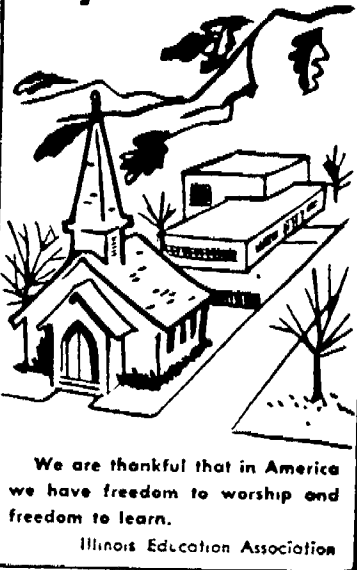

I turned around and walked back to the bar.
